Republican majorities continued to mount today as the tabulation of election returns for Pennsylvania neared completion.

The greatest vote-getter on the GOP slate was U. S. Senator James J. Davis who handily won re-election to his Senate seat by a 2,000,000 vote that gave him a majority of 400,000 or more over his Democratic rival, Gov. George H. Earle.

Judge Arthur H. James, the red-haired GOP nominee for Governor, did not keep up with Davis' pace but nevertheless rolled up a 285,661 majority over his opponent, Charles Alvin Jones, the quiet-spoken Pittsburgh lawyer.

The Republican nominees for Lieutenant Governor and Secretary of Internal Affairs, Samuel S. Lewis and William Livengood, Jr., rolled up majorities of a similar nature

HARRISBURG, Nov. 9.—(INS)—The Republican landslide in Pennsylvania today apparently gave the GOP control of the State House, narrowed the Democratic majority in the Senate to one or two votes, and increased the Republican delegation in Congress by upwards of eight seats.

NEW DEAL STAGGERS UNDER HUGE DEFEAT

G.O.P. Is Transformed From Pitiful Minority Into Formidable Opposition

NATION-WIDE IN SCOPE

By George R. Holmes
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(INS)—The New Deal staggered today under the impact of a smashing series of Republican gains, nation-wide in scope, which unexpectedly and over-night has transformed the G. O. P. from a pitiful minority into a formidable opposition.

The Democrats, it is true, retain control of both branches of Congress, but by greatly reduced majorities, and they still have a majority of the State governments. In that sense, and in that sense only, they may be said to have "won" the off-year election.

In every other sense, they lost it. They lost ten or a dozen seats in the Senate, sixty to seventy seats in the House, and a dozen Governorships. It will take the final and official tabulations to measure accurately the extent of the Democratic losses.

The Democrats were as dazed today over the results, as the Republicans were dazed in 1932, '34 and '36, when successive Democratic victories all but obliterated them as a major political party.

The certain result will be to stiffen Congressional opposition to the New Deal in the 76th Congress, which meets in January, and to stimulate and energize the Republicans to organize for 1940.

From coast to coast the New Dealers took a drubbing.

On the basis of complete and incomplete returns this morning, the Republican unseated Democratic Senators in Kansas, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Wisconsin, New Jersey, Ohio, and Oregon, with a few far Western States still to be heard from, and re-elected Republican incumbents in Vermont, North Dakota and Pennsylvania.

The Republicans regained control of State governments in Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Kansas, Iowa, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Wisconsin, Idaho, Colorado, Ohio, Wyoming and Oregon, with several still in doubt. They lost two Governors to the Democrats, in Maryland and California.

Thus, the Democratic recession encompassed the industrialized East and the grain belt of the mid-West, and extended to the Pacific Coast areas—a convincing cross-section.

Here in President Roosevelt's own New York, which he carried two years ago by more than a million votes, Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, once described as his "good right arm," narrowly escaped defeat at the hands of youthful, hard-hitting Tom Dewey, 36-year-old District Attorney.

Lehman squeezed through by some 76,000 votes, which is an extremely tight fit in a vote of more than 4,000,000. He ran about a half million votes behind the successful Democratic Senatorial candidates, Senator Robert F. Wagner, the author of much New Deal legislation, and Rep. James M. Mead, another ardent New Dealer, who ran for the unexpired term of the late Senator Royal S. Copeland.

Dewey, although losing, was by no means obliterated as a political factor, nor as future Presidential timber. He swept upstate New York as no candidate ever swept it before, coming down to the Bronx County line with a majority of 606,000. There he ran into a 682,000 majority which the Democratic machine of the Greater City furnished for Lehman, and the result was he missed it by an eye-lash.

From a practical political standpoint, the Governorships which the Republicans won yesterday mean more to the party, in terms of 1940, than

REPUBLICANS JUBILANT; CELEBRATE VICTORY

Decorate Opponents' Shop and Parade Throughout Bucks Co.

PARADE OF AUTOS HERE

Jubilant Republicans, happy over the victories in yesterday's election, let their joy be known during the night. In Bristol, in Bristol and Bensalem Townships, the communities throughout the county, and the state in general, the results were celebrated.

The backers of the successful party not only paraded, blew whistles and horns, and let the victory be known in that manner, but did not lose a chance to inform the members of the opposition in general.

Frank "Skeet" Hellings was surprised, even if not pleased, to find how his "friends" aided in decorating his shop on Maple street, Bristol. Hellings, said to be an ardent Democrat, is claimed to have been very certain of the outcome in Pennsylvania this election, and his alleged boasts have been numerous, it is said.

When the sun peeped over the horizon this morning it even blinked when it espied "Skeet's" shop, for high on the top of the radio aerial was an American flag, while on the door was a black, black crepe. Three signs were spread over the front of the little building, and these read:

"We just Plowed Under a Very Expensive Crop."
"Oh boy! Did 'We' do it?"
Republicans 8,000,000
Democrats 9,000,008
"Democratic Creed:
We Profited
All-ways"

Republicans throughout Bucks County formed impromptu parades early this morning when the election returns indicated a sweeping Republican victory throughout Pennsylvania. Whistles were blown, bells rung, automobile horns kept up a continual din and sound apparatus rent the stillness of the early morning hours.

Long queues of automobiles joined in the demonstrations and residents in the boroughs, township and villages who had retired for the night were awakened. Some left their beds and joined the procession.

NUMEROUS YOUNG MEN APPEAR, CRIMINAL COURT

Ten Defendants Range in Age From A 16-Year Old Youth To Man of Fifty-Four

FIVE ARE PAROLED

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 9.—Ten defendants, ranging from a 16-year-old youth, who stole two revolvers, to a 54-year-old drunken driver, pleaded guilty before Judge Calvin S. Boyer, on Monday afternoon.

James Billings, 18, of Brownsburg, who pleaded guilty to felonious entry and larceny, was committed to the Huntingdon Reformatory by Judge Boyer for an indeterminate sentence. He was one of five youths who committed crimes in Bucks county and New Jersey.

The youth, who admitted stealing gasoline, ducks and milk, was on probation at the time the thefts were committed. He pleaded guilty to felonious entry February 15, 1937, and was placed on probation for three years.

During his probation period he was warned by Probation Officer Horace E. Gwinner about frequenting the house of a Lambertville woman.

"You were placed on probation once before, but you disobeyed the Court, the probation officer and your mother," said Judge Boyer. Mrs. Emma Billings, mother of the youth, said the Lambertville woman came to their home in Brownsburg to visit her son and that he had promised her not to see her any more.

Divine Ideal and Perfect Standard of Conduct by Which Man Could Promote Peace

IN "SERMON ON MOUNT"

This is the third of a group of essays written by students of the Bristol high school by way of observing "National Education Week." The essay today is entitled "Achieving the Golden Rule."

By Mildred Graham 8-1

The Golden Rule, found in Christ's Sermon on the Mount, is one of His teachings which we learn at a very early age and which we should strive to follow from the day we learn it. In the Sermon on the Mount, He revealed to the people this divine ideal and perfect standard of conduct by which man could promote peace, trust, and harmony among his fellow men. We as Christian people have as our incentive in life the desire to fulfill the Golden Rule.

We feel that the only way to convince others of our faith in Christ is to

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

(Copyright, 1938, by The Baltimore Sun)

Senatorial Eyes Opened

Washington, Nov. 8.

IT TAKES no great discernment to know that one of the real struggles in the next session of Congress will be between Administration and anti-Administration forces over the question of whether the WPA, from Mr. Hopkins down, is to be Congressionally investigated. The developments of the recent campaign make that inevitable.

NATURALLY the White House influence will be exerted to the utmost to protect Mr. Hopkins from the expected assault—not only because it is the President's contention that the charges of WPA improper political activity are not true but because Mr. Hopkins is now generally conceded to be closer both personally and politically to Mr. Roosevelt than anyone else. As his most cherished friend and adviser, Mr. Hopkins these days easily outranks all the others—Tommy Corcoran as well as Jim Farley, Felix Frankfurter as well as Harold Ickes.

THE INTIMACY is such that the President takes criticism of Mr. Hopkins as criticism of himself and deeply resents the serious allegations made against the former by Democrats and Republicans alike. He has made it quite clear that no restrictions will be imposed upon Mr. Hopkins and no changes made in either WPA administration, personnel or methods so long as he has the power to prevent. On the other hand, the open way in which Mr. Hopkins has thrust himself into politics; his participation in the primaries; his political tours of the country; his political reports to the President and the extent to which his organization has become an instrument of Administration politicians, undoubtedly have strengthened the forces in Congress—particularly in the Senate—which feel the necessity of curbing the Hopkins power

YES, BUT HOW?

Dr. Otterbein Dressler, who tells a Michigan convention of physicians that emotional waste is an outstanding contributor to heart disease and high blood pressure, will probably not claim originality for the finding. We seem to have heard the same thing many times before.

But having the diagnosis, how does one go about the indicated cure. Is serenity something which may be grasped—or if it is, it is to be held in times like these, when each day poises some new issue which enlists not merely our interest but our ardent hopes and fears? There are few institutions of men, here or abroad, which are not presently at a crossroads of some kind, and few of us today who enjoy a complete stability, a constancy of all the factors which make for peace of the mind and spirit.

Religion is the traditional refuge of those whose afflictions lie outside the physician's realm, but the deeply religious are themselves today among the most deeply concerned over the tendency of world affairs. We could, as the Wisconsin tavern keeper does, hibernate each fall and forget the world until the coming of spring; but this imposes on those who must attend us while we are out of circulation. We can try deliberately to blind ourselves to what goes on around us and in the world, but few men of lively sensibilities can manage so strenuous a feat of self-discipline. The effort itself is a tax on the arteries.

Meanwhile, we don't wish to seem ungrateful to Dr. Dressler for the prescription, but where does one have it filled?

IN GRANDMA'S CORNER

Bag-punching as a palliative for arthritis may hardly be a topic to engross the attention of a medical convention; but it commands news interest in the case of a Boston grandmother, Mary Sullivan, 63, who successfully defended in court her right to resort to such a routine for the zestful relaxation of her old bones.

A neighbor of Grandma Sullivan had charged that her insistent taps on the bag in her own backyard had been resounding enough to disturb the locality's precious calm; but Mrs. Sullivan produced witnesses to testify that her fistic finesse was of an oral caliber calculated to lull infants to sleep. Apparently, what capacity it might have to lull an aggressive personal opponent to sleep was not considered relevant to the scope of adjudication.

Anyhow, Grandma was allowed to go home and continue belaboring the daylight out of her arthritis. Her right was upheld by the court; and hereafter anyone who doesn't like it will probably think twice before testing it further in court or in actual contact. Grandma Sullivan evidently has got something there—besides arthritis.

The press throughout the land is attempting to interpret the Wage-Hour Act, now in force. It is for the benefit of a curious citizenry, and Congressmen who wonder what it was they passed.

A famed economist sees no solution of the national debt but putting this once proud nation through the wringer. Thus the old Spirit of '76 would read '77b.

prove to them by our every day speech and actions that we have tried to absorb Christ's character and that our characters have become in turn, a mirror into which people can look and find reflected their honesty, courage, and all other virtues which will make for their well being.

In reference to every-day school life it could be used thus—A classmate had been absent from school for a few days. When he returned, he had no knowledge of the work which had been done in his absence. If he should ask me for this information, I would tell him. Why? If I had been absent from school and did not know the work, I would want a classmate to tell me what the work had been.

There is only one way that any one can achieve the Golden Rule, and that is by practicing it. This is, however, no small task. The development of more and more distrust, envy, and greed is making it difficult for Christians to prove themselves. It takes a strong and unselfish heart to count the cost of material loss as nothing. Yet, in doing so, one has the satisfaction of knowing that he has taken a step nearer to Christ's perfection. That step surely indicates that he who has given, has sent out from himself ripples of goodness that testify to his desire to do unto others as he would have others do unto him.

Numerous Young Men Appear, Criminal Court

$10 on account of the costs of prosecution within one month.

The five young men, all of whom were arrested by Private Walter A. Haman, of the Doylestown sub-station of the Pennsylvania Motor Police, were involved in a series of thefts in Solebury township and in New Jersey.

In Solebury they pleaded guilty to stealing gasoline and tools from the Solebury township garage, 40 quarts of milk and ducks from Albert Slack.

The quintet of young defendants served eight months in the Annadale Reformatory in New Jersey.

Davis, the oldest of the five, who made his home with Mrs. Anna Hart-pence, 341 South Main street, Lamb-ertville, N. J., testified she drove the car when the ducks were stolen and said, "I will cook them if you get them."

Davis, a lock fitter; Wilkes, a truck driver and mill worker; Fisher, a laborer; Allen, a former C. C. recruit and Billings, who was unemployed, all testified they "hung out" at Mrs. Hartpence's home where they played cards and could enter any time of the night because the door was never locked.

Before imposing sentence, Judge Boyer said: "We hardly know what to say. It is nothing new to have young men come before the Court. They are all of the same type. They have cars, do not work, rove around at night and are tempted to steal. When they need gasoline to keep their cars going, some one suggests 'easy money' and they are not strong enough to resist the temptation. Young men have temptations in these days which we didn't have and I try to be broad-minded enough to realize that, but something must be done. We can't let each generation grow up and commit crimes which are very serious," said Judge Boyer.

Character witnesses included Dr. John A. Flood, New Hope; Bertha Fisher, George Rice, Agnes Allen, Marion Edwards, Horace Hunt and Harvey Fisher, all of Lambertville, N. J., and Elwood Rossiter, Brownsburg.

Pleading guilty to drunken driving, which involved a three-car collision, George Bye, 54, of Newtown, who was arrested by Private Howard C. Dando, of the Oxford Valley sub-station of the Pennsylvania Motor Police, near Southampton October 9th, was sentenced by Judge Boyer to pay the costs of prosecution and pay a fine of $100.

The defendant, who is the father of ten children, testified he has paid the sum of $1805 to persons who were injured and also as property damages.

"This is another case of an absolutely, high class, respectable citizen being brought into court," said Judge Boyer. The Newtown blacksmith testified he took one good-sized glassful of liquor.

Character witnesses included John Coupe, J. Stanley Lee, and William L. Hutchinson, Newtown station agent.

Carl Glover, a Negro, of Philadelphia, who pleaded guilty to operating a car after operating privilege had been revoked and was arrested by Private Fred Arcamone, of the Quakertown sub-station of the Pennsylvania Motor Police, August 12, was given a suspended sentence and placed on probation for one year.

"In view of the fact that you have been in the County Prison nearly two months, the Court will suspend sentence," said Judge Boyer. The Negro, who was operating a coal truck on the Bethlehem Pike, was committed to prison September 15.

Pleading guilty to the theft of two revolvers and rounds of ammunition, Ernest Muselman, 16, of Red Hill, Montgomery county, was heard before Judge Boyer. The Judge deferred sentence until the parents have been contacted and can attend the next hearing.

The youth, who was arrested by Private Harry F. Christ, of the investigating department of the Doylestown sub-station of the Pennsylvania Motor Police, was arrested October 23, shortly after robbing a home near Goryville.

Goldi W. Brown, a Negro, of Philadelphia, who pleaded guilty to drunken driving and was arrested by Private Donald C. Wentzel, of the South Langhorne sub-station of the Pennsylvania Motor Police, was sentenced to serve not less than four months nor more than three years in the County Prison.

Private Wentzel arrested the defendant October 30 in Falls township when his car zig-zagged on the Lincoln Highway, almost colliding with a car driven by the patrolman.

The defendant, who admitted having served 12 years in a penitentiary, said the car which he was driving was a stolen car, and that he also had no operator's license. "I was drinking and when I woke up found myself in a car, so I decided to turn around and go back to Philadelphia, and I was arrested," said the Negro.

"In-as-much as you have been charged with crime in another county growing out of this particular incident, the Court will direct that you pay the costs of prosecution and undergo a prison sentence," said Judge Boyer.

Karl F. Ottolini, 40, of Philadelphia, publisher of a German weekly and radio speaker, who pleaded guilty to drunken driving, was sentenced by Judge Boyer to pay the costs of prosecution and pay a fine of $150.

Private Arthur B. Erdman, of the South Langhorne sub-station of the Pennsylvania Motor Police, who arrested the defendant October 15 on the Bristol Pike, west of the borough, testified the defendant said, "I am a friend of the Governor and if you don't let me go I will have the Governor take care of you."

The defendant testified he attended a farewell party in Bristol where he had a few beers and a cocktail.

Character witnesses included Dr. Walter Seiple, a dentist; Frederick C. Rausser, a professor of music, and Carl Kniessel, all of Philadelphia.

and rendering impossible in the future the sort of thing the Sheppard committee has revealed this time.

AS A RESULT of the volume of evidence against WPA in the last few months, in the next session there will be, in addition to the Republicans and anti-New Deal Democrats who have always wanted to end these lump-sum, no-strings-to-them appropriations for relief, two classes of Democrats—first those who were candidates in the primaries last summer and knew what Mr. Hopkins was trying to do to them; second, those who come up for renomination and re-election in 1940. These would be foolish, indeed, if they permitted Mr. Hopkins to continue to hold, unchecked, a power which he could—and would—use against them if they failed in the sort of subterfuge to the White House which is the essential to White House support.

THE Republicans have already given notice of their purpose to sponsor an investigating movement. It is certain to have strong Democratic support. In the last session, two amendments which would have measurably prevented political use of the WPA were defeated in the Senate by the narrowest possible margins, and only then because of the complete White House weight exerted through the leadership of Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, who made what was practically a personal plea to his colleagues in behalf of his own candidacy for renomination. Following the defeat of these amendments came the Kentucky primaries in which the Senate committee as well as newspaper investigators found that the WPA was being openly used to aid the Barkley candidacy.

THE FACT that the Hatch amendment, against which Mr. Barkley spoke and voted, lost by one vote only in the last session makes it clear that any similar proposal to clip Mr. Hopkins' wings will go through the next Senate without trouble. And, should the investigation proposal fail, there is every reason to believe an increased resentment, mixed with apprehension, will make a majority of the next Senate determined to vote no more huge lump sums into the President's hands to be turned over by him to Mr. Hopkins, who, with his aide, in the middle of a campaign, voice their views as to how voters on relief should vote. More clearly than they did before, Senators see that they have been voting to put a club in the hands of the Executive with which they can hit over the head if they don't "behave." More clearly than before they see that to continue that process is to become prize political saps.

ON THE SCREENS

BRISTOL

Ladies and Gentlemen, we give you the Gleason Family! We have taken great pleasure heretofore in individually presenting the wise-cracking, hard-boiled and perpetually bewildered Jimmy; the suave and sophisticated Lucile, and that handsome young man, Russell—but never before have we been privileged to present these three popular performers en masse, until "The Higgins Family," current Republic release, opens today at the Bristol Theatre, where it will delight local audiences.

Jimmy is at his best as the harried head of a slightly "teched" family. He is doing his best to make a living working in an advertising agency, but all his efforts to impress a client come to naught when said client is exposed to the family; Lillian (Lucile), who goes in for amateur theatricals and housewifely broadcasts; Sid (Russell), whose inventions threaten the sanity of the entire household; and Marian (Lynn Roberts) whose romantic love affairs keep the family in a continuous uproar.

The going gets pretty tough when Lucile launches a housewife broadcast sponsored by a company in direct competition with Jimmy's boss. Jimmy gets fired and starts an advertising agency of his own, only to have Lucile disparage every one of his clients over the air.

The family is headed straight for disaster, when a swift-paced denouement saves the day.

SAVOLDI TO BATTLE WITH CHIEF LITTLE WOLF

TRENTON, Nov. 9.—Again bringing together two of the biggest names in the wrestling game, Promoter Johnny Ipp will offer Jumping Joe Savoldi, Notre Dame's greatest fullback, opposed to Chief Little Wolf, colorful Navajo Indian. It will be a best two fall out of three, 90 minute time limit tussle and another large crowd is expected to view the proceedings at the Trenton Arena.

Last week Little Wolf waged a spectacular battle against Jim Londo and it was only by the grace of the referee and a "strangle hold" that caused the redskin to lose the combat. It was the first defeat that the Wolf suffered here. He wants to wipe that blot off his record but started off with the toughest sort of opposition when he accepted Savoldi as his opponent.

Savoldi is one of the most brilliant campaigners in the game and he has demonstrated his class on more than one occasion at the Arena. It is an even-up match and the winner will have a tough row to hoe before his hand is raised in victory.

Pete Peterson, swift Dane, and Sammy Menacher, classy New York Hebrew, will vie in the semi-windup. Both boys made big hits with the fans last week and there were many requests for a bout between the pair. Herbie Freeman, burly New Yorker, faces the Cardiff Giant, Frank Brown, a classy newcomer, meets gigantic Jules Strongbow and Tom Mahoney, will tackle Hank Matheny.

The first bout will start at 8.30 p. m.

Davis Wins Over Earle by 400,000 In State Contest

the Republicans might gain a few more seats in the Senate before the vote was entirely completed and thus control the entire Legislature.

Indications, with complete returns as yet unavailable, were that the Republicans would have perhaps 110 votes in the House to 98 for the Democrats, a sharp reversal of the 154-54 Democratic majority that prevailed at the opening of the 1937 session.

Secretary of Internal Affairs

In the Senate, the Republicans were seemingly assured of at least 23 votes, a gain of seven. Should they garner two more, the vote of incoming Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis, Republican, would assure them control of the Senate, the vote of the presiding officer of the Senate always being cast in case of a tie. There are 50 members in the Senate. Half the Senate seats were filled at yesterday's election and all of the House's 208 seats.

The completeness of the Republican victory stunned Democratic leaders in the Legislature. Many of them will be missing when the 1939 Legislature assembles.

One of those who will be absent will be the Democratic President pro tem of the Senate, Harvey Huffman, who was defeated by Montgomery F. Crowe in the 14th District. Another who appeared to be losing was Sen. Edward J. Thompson, Centre Democrat, who trailed his opponent, A. R. Letzler, with all returns not yet in.

Speaker of the House Roy E. Furman nosed out a 111-vote victory over his Republican opponent in Greene County, while Sen. Anthony J. Cavalcante, insurgent Democrat, won handsomely in his neighboring bailiwick of Fayette County.

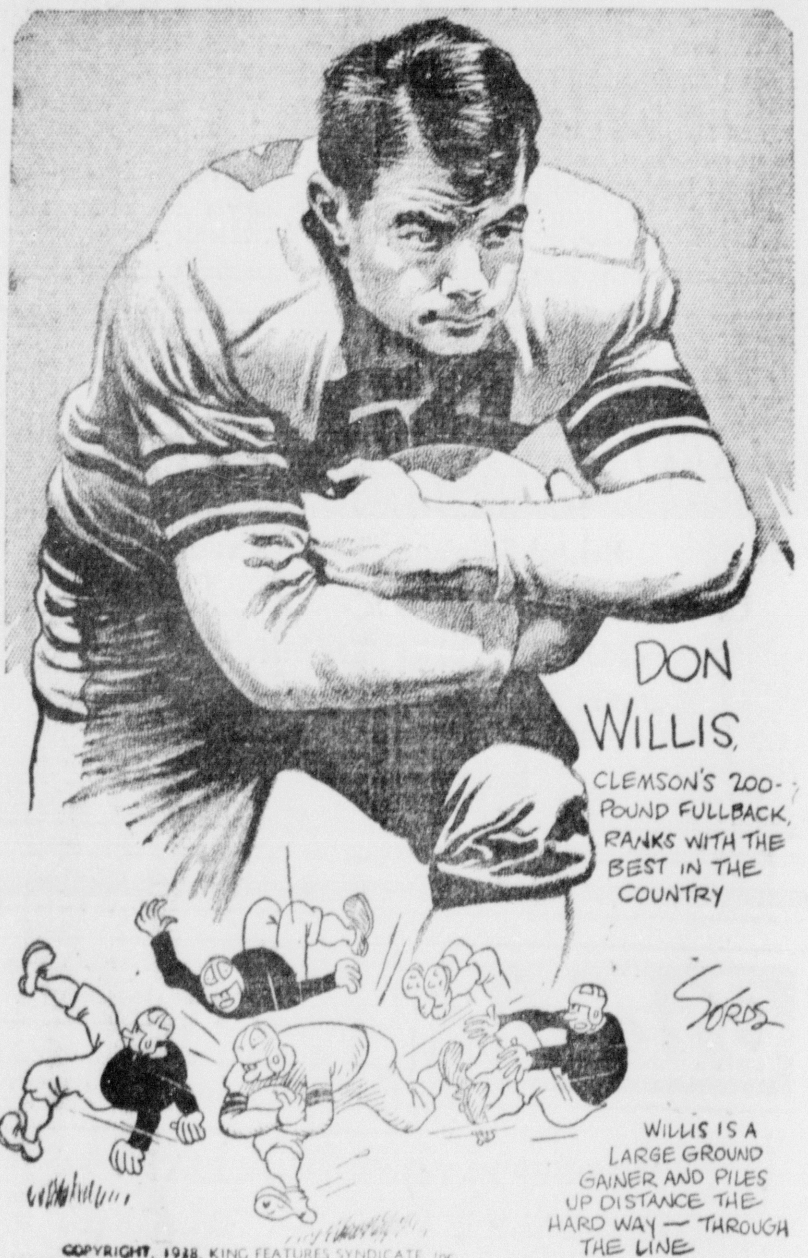

Samuel W. Salus, veteran Republican from Philadelphia, lost in Philadelphia to Herbert Levin, D. Only 93 votes separated them at the final count. Sen. Walter S. Pytko, Philadelphia Democrat, was defeated by Louis H. Farrell, Republican, Rep. Edward J. Coleman, Scranton House Democrat, was elected to the Senate to fill the seat of Sen. John W. Howell, Republican, who was not a candidate for re-election.

Rep. Herbert B. Cohen, York, Democratic floor leader, was returned to the House by a few hundred votes, as Rep. Joseph Ominsky, Philadelphia, the Democratic whip, Rep. Edward J. Turner, veteran Republican floor leader, was easily re-elected and will assure Furman's place as Speaker of the House next year. Mrs. Ruth G. Horting, Lancaster housewife, one of the two women members of the Legislature (both of whom are Democrats), was defeated for re-election by Alfred C. Alsopack, Lancaster Republican. The other woman member, Miss Anna Brancato, Philadelphia, was re-elected.

The greatest turnover of House members was in Philadelphia where 16 Republicans and 25 Democrats were elected. In the 1937 session there were three Republicans and 33 Democrats from Philadelphia.

In Allegheny County, a former House delegation of 27 Democrats was changed to one composed of 15 Demo-

Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, and they lost their "allies" as well in Wisconsin and Minnesota.

In Wisconsin, Gov. Phil LaFollette, seeking his fourth term as the head of his own Independent Progressive party, proved to be the pitcher that went to the well once too often. He was defeated by Julius P. Heil, Milwaukee industrialist, who ran as a "regular" Republican.

In Minnesota, the Farmer-Labor party which has dominated the State since the late Floyd B. Olson "broke" the Republican domination, went out of the State House. Harold Stassen, a 31-year-old St. Paul attorney, running as a regular Republican, was elected Governor over Gov. Elmer A. Benson, in whose behalf Mr. Roosevelt indited a telegram of praise only last week.

The results in Minnesota and Wisconsin would seem to dispose of any serious third party threats for 1940. Both the Progressives and the Farmer-Laborites, between whom there was a close affinity, are now out of office, save for a few Senators and Congressmen. "Regular" Republicans take their places.

The Democratic high command was apparently still too dazed this morning to offer any explanation for the sweeping reverses which the party suffered. Some Republican gains had been expected and conceded. But nothing like what occurred.

President Roosevelt scanned the returns in the library of his Hudson River estate until an early hour this morning. He sent a few telegrams of congratulation to successful Democratic candidates, and then retired without public comment. He will return to Washington on Thursday to face an entirely new political situation, and a desk full of problems.

The usually genial Jim Farley, the National Chairman and Postmaster General, also retired without comment on the election, other than to make a brief statement congratulating Gov. Lehman and the New York State ticket on the "victory."

The gloom about Farley's headquarters was apparent early in the evening as the first returns from New England and the mid-West began to forecast what was happening. Jim went to a barber-shop to escape reporter questioners, and later locked himself in a hotel room and avoided callers. About his only consolation on New York was the victory of Wagner and Mead and the magnificent way in which the organization delivered for Lehman in the counties that constitute the Greater City.

The Republicans gleefully maintain, and with some justification, that the results, considered nationally, constitute a blow to Mr. Roosevelt's personal prestige, and a warning as well that the country is losing its sympathy for further New Deal experimentation along social and economic lines. But it would have been a greater blow had the Democrats lost New York.

The defeat of Gov. Frank Murphy in Michigan was a deep disappointment to high-ranking New Dealers. Twice within the past month did President Roosevelt go to the assistance of Murphy, once with a statement condemning the Dies Congressional Committee for "smearing" the red-headed Governor, and again on the radio with a defense of Murphy's handling of the sit-down strikes a year ago.

The belief prevails in informed circles that Mr. Roosevelt will find a way to keep Murphy in public service. It may be on the Supreme Court bench. Mr. Roosevelt has never filled the vacancy caused by the death of Justice Cardozo.

Not the least of the Republican elation and satisfaction over Tuesday's outcome is the fact that there has now been washed upon their beach by the tide some Presidential timber.

For the most part, the Republican victories were won by younger men—Robert A. Taft, in Ohio, son of the late President and Chief Justice; Leverett Saltonstall, in Massachusetts, who stopped ex-Gov. Jim Curley's effort at a political come-back; Stassen in Minnesota; youngish William H. Vanderbilt, who led the greatest Republican victory Rhode Island has experienced in 25 years; John A. Danaher in Connecticut, who unhorsed Senator Augustine Lonigan. There may be others lurking in the woodpile of that Republican avalanche of yesterday.

They meet, in part at least, the party cry for new faces and younger leadership in the councils of the party that long have been dominated by the elders.

At all events, the New Deal has experienced its first real setback, and the Republicans have demonstrated that their fears of its invulnerability were highly exaggerated.

As for the Democrats, they are now brought to the sober realization that if they are to be successful in the future they must close ranks, stop the intra-party dissension, the "purging" and quarrelling, and regain a measure of party harmony.
